Faculty Makes Many Changes In '35-36 Rules

President Ferry Makes The Announcement In Chapel on "Moving-Up" Day, Wednesday

Dean's List Remains

Week-Day Chapel Cuts 15; Class Cuts Equal Number of Class Hours

On Wednesday morning, June 12, President Ferry announced in chapel the following changes in the administrative rules of the college which will be in effect next year. Throughout the amendments, the policy has been followed of revising the rules according to the new system without changing the spirit of the old rules. The Dean's list which was approved by the Trustees in April is a permanent feature of the College and will be in effect next year.

Revisions have been made in the section on allowance of absence as follows:

1. Normal Allowance of Absence: An undergraduate in regular standing and with no attendance delinquincies has for each semester the following allowance of absence: week-day chapel, 15; Sunday chapel—seniors, 6; juniors, 5, sophomores, 4, freshman, 3; classroom exercises, a number of absences equal to the number of hours in his classroom schedule and distributed at his option but subject to the rule concerning zeros in the scholarship record (See I, 1, in the administrative rules).

Members of the College Choi (Music 3-4 are allowed three absences from the choir rehearsals and three Sunday chapel absences each semester. Members not in their choir seats are counted absent. Credit in the course is forfeited by exceeding the allowance of absence without approved excuse.

Absences from Sunday chapel and from week-day chapel are not interchangeable with each other or with absences from classroom exercises.

2. Restricted Allowance of Absence: An undergraduate not in regular standing (See I, 4, in the

Henry Benedict Passes in New York June 12

Benedict '69 Was Trustee of Long Standing; Gave Benedict Hall to the College

Henry Harper Benedict '91, one of the founders of the typewriting industry in this country, died June 12, 1935 in New York City.

He was born in German Flatts October 9, 1844, son of Micaiah and Catherine Benedict.

He was educated in Little Falls Academy, Fairfield Seminary and Marshall Institute and was graduated from Hamilton College in 1869. While there he was a member of the Delta Kappa Epsilon fraternity.

Mr. Benedict entered the employ of E. Remington & Sons at Ilion in 1869. At that time, the Remingtons were large manufacturers or arms and agricultural implements and frequently took up piece work for inventors who devised new machines for a variety of purposes. One of these was the typewriter.

First Model Clumsy

Several models from different inventors were submitted to the Arms Company about this time. One was that of Christopher Latham Scholes and proved to be the most practical of the lot. It was a big, awkward and clumsy affair which required the use of both hands and feet to operate it.

Convinced the machine could be

Undergraduates Pay $550 Into The Gym Fund

Records up to the time that Life goes to press show that the undergraduates of Hamilton College have paid a total of $563.95 into the Undergraduate Gym Fund for the year 1935-36. All of this money with the exception of expenses has been turned over to the Trustee of the fund, Mr. Edward M. Coughlin.

Plans have been laid for continuing the undergraduate drive next year. All of the houses with senior members on the undergraduate Gym Building Committee have elected other representatives and the others on the committee have announced their intention of carrying on next year.

The Gym Fund was started this year by the undergraduates who felt that some definite action toward a new gymnasium should be forthcoming. A committee of twelve was formed with one representative on it from each house. A Gym Issue of Life was published in December and mailed to all of the alumni of the college to tell them what the undergraduates were doing. A dance at Sigma Phi Place was held in February and some $15 was raised for the Fund.

Doctor Ferry Receives LL.D. From Rutgers

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J.—Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd and Governor Harold G. Hoffman of New Jersey received honorary degrees of Doctors of Laws at the 169th commencement of Rutgers University in the Rutgers Gymnasium.

Dr. Frederick Carlos Ferry, president of Hamilton College, who also received the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws, delivered the commencement address before 3,500 persons. He saw the best promise for the future of education afforded by a liberal arts program of non-vocational studies.

"One does not forget," Dr. Ferry said, "that education in these days should fit youth for the advantageous use of more abundant leisure. For this there is needed an understanding of the past, an interest in the better features of the present, and a lasting concern for and deep sympathy with the future. There should be included also a well-chosen hobby to be planted in the very center of the garden of leisure."

In conferring the honorary degrees at the commencement exercises on Admiral Bryd, Governor Hoffman, Dr. Ferry and others, Dr. Clothier read the following citations:

Doctor of Laws

Richard Evelyn Byrd—Able aviator, commander in the United States Navy, distinguished scientist, explorer and leader. It is given to few men to fill such an unique place in history as has been your splendid and deserving experience. In the field of courageous exploration you belong to the twentieth as Columbus belonged to the fifteenth century and Magellan to the sixteenth. To the present generation, and to countless generations to come, your work will be the living symbol of romance and adventure. Within our limited imaginations we have shared with you in your daring explorations into the Arctic and Antarctic regions; we have breathlessly admired your inspired leadership on each expedition, and wished you good health and Godspeed in your effort to expand so nobly the realm of science.

Retiring Head of Political Science Club Reviews Year

The Hamilton College Political Science Club has completed a very successful year and brought to a happy conclusion the second annual Public Affairs Lecture series. This series was inaugurated last year when Howard B. White was president of the club.

For the year 1934-35 President Edwin M. Clough arranged a series of five main lectures and two informal meetings making a total of seven speakers for the year.

The opening talk was given by H. C. Englebrecht, co-author of the book, "Munition Makers". He talked on the arms inquiry which was going on in Washington at the time.

Mr. Louis Brownlow gave the the second lecture in December when he discussed Bureaucracy which was and has been a matter of growing importance since the entering into power of the Democratic regime. Mr. Brownlow has been for many years city manager of various important cities in the United States.

The third talk was by Edwin Kemmerer of Princeton University who discussed America's currency problem. Mr. Kemmerer has been active for many years supervising various countries in their financial problems and was therefore very well able to discuss the question.

William Butler Yeats Now 70 Feted by Irish Academy

William Butler Yeats will be 70 on Thursday, and that austere raven of Irish literature is to descend from his remote perch in Rathfarnham to attend a banquet given by the Irish Academy and the other Dublin literary societies in his honor. It will be a great occasion, for the raven of Rathfarnham is the founder of modern Irish literature. There were other literati in the Irish aviary near the turn of the century, many of them, but it was Mr. Yeats, above them all, who re-created Irish literature and led it forth into the literatures of the world as a new and independent force.

To go out to Rathfarnham on the eve of his seventieth birthday is like slipping down the years into the quiet before the revolution. For the last six or seven years he has had to winter at Rapallo, where he has had Max Beerbohm and Gordon Craig for neighbors, but during the rest of the year you find him far out from the hubbub of Dublin, with the mountains not far from the foot of his garden. There is the loveliness of great poetry in his face and a dry, humorous austerity in his manner. He has never been a man of action; his word of fantasy seems wholly remote from the daily rough and tumble. He is neither a poet of the people nor a poet of ideas. Beauty, melody and the magic of words have been his concerns.

Strife would appear to have passed him by. Yet he has had his battles. This great Irish poet has defied angry mobs and fought og rioters during his vivid days as director of the Abbey Theatre. Re-

WELCOME

Hamilton LIFE takes this opportunity of welcoming the Alumni of the College and their friends, who have returned to the Hill once more for the festivities of the week-end. We trust that it will prove to be a memorable event not only for you but for ourselves as well, and from what we have seen of the activities so far we think that every one is having a very enjoyable time.

To you men of the class of 1885, who are celebrating the fiftieth anniversary of your graduation from Hamilton, we extend an even heartier welcome if that is possible. And to all the other classes which are having a special reunion this year, we extend our greetings.

It is our earnest desire that this special issue of Hamilton LIFE will meet with your approval. If it doesn't, we would especially like to know about it. Any time during the year that you have any criticisms for us either constructive or destructive, please send them in, for only in that way can we hope to put out a real paper representative of Hamilton and her men.

IN MEMORIAM

The whole college community was stunned yesterday morning to learn of the death of one of its most beloved and loyal profssors, Calvin Leslie Lewis '90, who died Thursday afternoon at Deposit, New York. He was on his way back to the Hill for his 45th commencement after spending the winter in Florida where he had gone to try and regain his health.

Professor Lewis, up until last June was head of the department of Public Speaking at Hamilton College and was the Upson professor of Rhetoric and Oratory. His work did much to make Hamilton known throughout the country as a college whose graduates are well-versed in the art of speaking. Professor Lewis was one of the most loyal of Hamilton alumni and his work was worthy of the highest commendation. The whole college mourns his death.

AN ALUMNI PAPER

There is a great need of some kind of an Alumni publication at Hamilton College. At the present time the alumni have no very satisfactory means of keeping in touch with the college except through the catalogue and one or two other pamphlets which the college sends to them each year and Hamilton LIFE. Hamilton LIFE makes a fairly complete coverage of the college life from day to day, but many of the articles have more bearing on those immediately connected with the college than on alumni who live a great distance away.

Since no plans have been definitely completed as yet for such a publication, Hamilton LIFE proposes to the alumni of the college that it publish an Alumni supplement for the year 1935-36. This supplement will be in addition to the Alumni Notes of Professor Fitch, which have been a weekly feature of the paper this year. The publication will contain news of the alumni associations, articles of and by Hamilton men, and any other features which the editors feel will appeal to the graduates of Hamilton College.

Such an undertaking must, of necessity, begin modestly. The size of the supplement will be four pages 8" by 11". There will be no advertising. The supplement will be put out from two to four times in the year depending on the available material and alumni support.

The cost of publishing such a paper is to be borne by LIFE. The supplement will be sent free to the subscribers of Hamilton LIFE and to those who are not subscribers for one dollar a year. Any surplus of this money is to go to the Alumni Fund.

While this cannot be considered a permanent solution to the problem of an Alumni publication at Hamilton, we feel that it might be a temporary step in the right direction. We are enxious to know what you alumni think of such a project.

Statement of A T F Announced

At a meeting of the Executors of the Athletic Trust Fund in the Library on Sunday, June 2, the report of the fund was read and approved. The total of all bills presented was $374.25. This exceeded by $43.25 the total in the A.T.F. account in the Hayes National Bank, so it was decided that only thirty-five dollars was to be paid on the two bills presented which exceeded that amount. Article 6 of the By-laws was amended to allow half payment of bills for recurrent injuries. That left a surplus of $23.50 in the account for next year.

The Executors passed that starting next year (1935-36) the Chairman of the A.T.F. committee shall be the junior-year president of the Senior Class. The President of the Interfraternity Council shall be an Executor but not the Chairman of the Committee.

Receipts

331 memberships in the A.T.F.A. $331.00

Disbursements

Paid to certified members of the A.T.F.A. for injuries $307.00
Check account tax ..... .50

Total expenditure $307.50

Two certified members whose bills exceeded $35 were paid the sum of $35 only. Two others whose bills totaled $50 were paid half of this for recurrent injuries.

The receipted bills presented to the Executors for consideration ranged from one dollar to sixty dollars, with the average running at seventeen dollars; and the injuries reported were distributed as follows: 16 were received by varsity men either in practice or in games; 3, in Physical Training classes; 3, in interclass games.

Don Skenandoah May Be on Hill

Donald Skenandoah, son of Chief Albert Skenandoah, may become a student at Hamilton College in the fall, it was indicated following his return to Onondaga Indian Reservation upon completion of a four-year course at Haskell Institute, Lawrence, Kansas, last week.

Chief Skenandoah hopes his son will decide to study on the Hill. History records that the college's founding was made possible by an ancestral Skenandoah who granted a tract of land on the present campus site. His aid to Samuel Kirkland was invaluable and his influence in the Revolutionary War induced the Oneida Indians to declare in favor of the American colonists.

During the late years of his life, Skenandoah made numerous visits to this village, hoping to die here. But his last sickness came upon him at Oneida Castle and he died on May 11, 1816, aged about 110 years. His work in maintaining peace between the white and red races and his desire to see an educational institution established here has been frequently recalled. The late Chief is remembered as one of the best friends with whom white men of this vicinity were associated.

SENIOR BALL ENJOYED BY STUDENTS, ALUMNI

The social season of Hamilton's undergraduate activities reached its climax last evening, June 14, when the annual Senior Ball took place in the Hall of Commons. Mal Hallet and his orchestra consisting of 12 instruments and a soloist, were the musicians selected for the occasion. They came to Hamilton while on tour, away from their usual stomping grounds, Boston.

The class of 1935's swan song was prepared under the direction of Walter Robinson, chairman of the committee. Dancing began at 10:00 o'clock and continued with short intermissions until 5:00 a. m. The Hall was lighted with four spotlights casting a subdued yet lively glow, otherwise undecorated. There were present about 130 couples, representing, for the most part, the undergraduate body and alumni. The evening offered a chance to renew old acquaintances as well as opportunity to make new friends. The peppy, yet musical, selections did much to make the evening one of sociability.

developed commercially after it was refined mechanically, E. Remington turned it over to William K. Jenne, a skilled mechanic. He, with other mechanics, worked on the machine for several months and brought it to a point where it showed great promise.

Mr. Benedict and Clarence W. Seamans were sent to New York with the machine and they canvassed offices in the city endeavoring to induce people to buy it. They met with little success.

The two men then turned their attention to business schools with the thought that students in schools of stenography would demand the machine from future employers after graduation. One institution, the Wykoff School, consented to try out the machines. Wykoff was so pleased with the result he decided to invest in its manufacture. Several years later, in 1882, the firm of Wykoff, Seamans and Benedict took over the Remington interests and began manufacture in a separate plant.

The original name was retained and the product has always been marketed as the Remington Typewriter. Mr. Benedict was president of the firm.

He was a great student of art and history. He traveled extensively and had a private art gallery, including a notable collection of works by Whistler.

Hamilton Patron

He gave to Hamilton College the Benedict Hall of Languages and the organ in the chapel. Whenever possible he attended trustees meetings and took an active part in the deliberations.

In politics, Mr. Benedict was a Republican, but never sought or accepted public office. He attended St. Thomas' Church in New York and was a generous donor to charitable and religious enterprises.

Mr. Benedict never lost his interest in Central New York. He was devoted to his old home in Ilion and did much for the village and its people. He built the Ilion Hospital.

In June, 1915, the Masonic Temple at Little Falls was dedicated. As his father had been active in Free Masonry, Mr. Benedict gave the lodge room in this building in memory of his father.

In 1867, Mr. Benedict married Maria Nellis, daughter of Henry G. Nellis, Fort Plain, who died in 1915. In 1917 he married Josephine Katharine Magill Geddes, Hamilton, Ontario, who is living. He leaves two daughters, Mrs. Archibald Alexander Forest, Rye, by his first wife, and Josephine Catharine by his second wife, and two sisters, Mrs. James Berlingame, and Mrs. Frances Richards, Mohawk.

FACULTY PASSES MANY NEW RULES ON JUNE 11

administrative rules) has for each semester the normal allowance of absence from week-day and Sunday chapel exercises and an allowance of ten absences from classroom exercises.

3. Minimum Allowance of Absence. An undergraduate who has a delinquency in attendance (See III, 1, below), either in Sunday chapel, week-day chapel, or classroom exercises, has for the next semester one-third the number of absences in that exercise or group of exercises where the delinquency was incurred.

7. Special Provision for Seniors: A senior, if not a member of the choir, may be excused from Sunday chapel attendance after the completion of his last examination of the final semester on application at the Office of the President.

Section III, on delinquencies in attendance, now read:

1. Penalties for Exceeding Absence Allowance: An undergraduate who exceeds any of his allowances of absence (Sunday chapel, week-day chapel, classroom exercises) in a given semester without approved excuse incurs a delinquency in attendance, and for further unexcused absences additional delinquencies are imposed. The penalty for a delinqency in attendance is restriction to one-third the normal allowance of absence next semester in that exercise or group of exercises where the delinquency was incurred.

Subscribe to Hamilton Life

No undergraduate is allowed to continue in college with four delinquencies in attendance in classroom exercises, or a total of six delinquencies wherever incurred.

2. Removal of Delinquencies in Attendance: An undergraduate may remove a delinquency in attendance by not exceeding in a subsequent semester the minimum allowance of absence in the exercise or group of exercises where the delinquency was incurred, and in no other way.

Certain changes occur in the following paragraphs concerning excuses:

1. Protracted Illness: Absence necessitated by protracted illness will be dealt with by the Committee on Attendance and Scholarship, on application made through the Dean. When excuse is granted for such absence, the undergraduate may be allowed certain additional absences depending on his attendance record and the circumstances of the case.

2. (No Chance).

3. Sunday Attendance. (Change 10:30 to 11). An undergraduate whose home is within reasonable distance of the College may obtain permission, on application to the Dean, to spend Sunday occasionally at home. This permission shall not ordinarily exceed half of the Sundays on which the services are held at the College in a given semester and will involve a proportional adjustment in the applicants allowance of absence from Sunday chapel. An undergraduate who commutes from his home to the College may obtain permission to spend Sunday regularly at home.

sey, member ex-officio of the board of trustees of this university, soldier, exemplary public servant. The promise and fulfillment of American democracy are assured when into our public lives come men of high character. In all the many governmental activities in which you have participated, as a member of the State Legislature, and as a member of Congress, your services to society have been whole-hearted and freely given. Through your wise and courageous leadership as Governor you have already won a place of deep respect in the hearts of the people of your Commonwealth. And we, members of that Commonwealth, are happiest in the thought that we greet you today as still a young man, assured that your genius for public service will grow even more fruitful with the passing years. We have great confidence in that future.

Frederick Carlos Ferry—Clinton, N. Y.—Graduate of Williams College in the class of '91 and subsequently a student at Harvard University and Clark University; distinguished educator; now president of Hamilton College. Throughout the world today there are men in many professions and public services who look upon you with admiration and respect. These are men who once sat in your classroom in Latin, Greek, and mathematics and were inspired by the personality of a pedagogue who could pass the warmth of personal friendship along with the friendship of books and knowledge. When, several years ago, you relinquished a portion of your teaching responsibilities to become president of Hamilton College, these former students joined with the academic world in general in acclaiming this splendid and fully deserved expression of recognition. You have come to another campus today where the ideals and high spiritual influence for which you stand are a symbol of the meaning and the purpose of higher education.

turn from the austere quiet of Rathfarnham into the roaring center of Dublin and you will find an inconspicuous building thrusting its porte-cochere over the sidewalk a few steps away from the clatter of the quay. A hundred yards or so away, O'Connell Street pours its streams of trams, traffic and pedestrians across the O'Connell Bridge. Trucks clatter and the buses fill up and rattle away toward Howth, Clontarf, Drumcondra and the suburbs. One passes under the porte-cochere and into a littlte theater vestibule, the air of which is fragrant with cogee. An unusual theater. The auditorium is small, the stalls are all but in the orchestra pit, and there is only one gallery.

But in every other sense than the physical the Abbey is one of the most imposing structures in Dublin, for the Irish drama which has come out of it in the last thirty years has been so great a contribution to the contemporary theater as almost to justify the view that the Irish are the only English-speaking race who are producing any drama at all. Tucked away up the side street in which the old Dublin morgue used to stand, this inconspicuous place has a world-wide fame.

the Hotel Commodore, New York City, March 29 and 30, when he missed the national epee championship by a single touch in the final round of participation.

This outstanding feat placed him second in class A epee competition. In the final bout he was tied for first place with Alexander of Princeton, although Bremer had defeated Alexander in a match the previous afternoon. The fence-off took place in the evening with the Princeton swordsman scoring the first touch. Bremer soon tied the count with a rushing attack and, after considerable interim, he attempted tnother rush, missed, and lost the touch on a stop.

This is the second time a Hamilton College representative has lost an individual championship by one touch. John Redmond having come equally close in the sabre competition in 1928.

McKINNEY CONTEST YESTERDAY IN CHAPEL

Dale's subject was "The Autocrat of the Sea," being a recital of the burden of responsibility which rests upon the shoulders of a sea-captain, who must make all the final decisions in running his entire ship, and only the forces of nature are a higher authority. Dale's speaking was very good, but he did not put a great deal of color into it.

Hendricks spoke "The Murder of Thomas A. Becket," the dramatic story of the martyr struck down by armed men, and his significance in history. There was much vivid action in the story, which Henricks portrayed well.

Lyon's subject was "Seeking the City of God," in which he told of the pitiful Children's Crusade, and of its tragic end. Lyons' diction was excellent, and his speaking was smooth-flowing and without hesitation.

Montgomery gave Carlyle's famous story of Charlotte Corday's murder of Marat, who were compared to the beautiful and the squalid mutually extinguishing each other. Montgomery experienced no difficulty with the French phrases, and showed good interpretation of the story and good self-possession on the stage.
